CARTOON NOTES

Music
Inspired by The POWERPUFF GIRLS! "Heroes &
Villains" Available on CD and Cassette July 2000

Hey there, everybody. Don't you wish we all had teeth like the POWERPUFF GIRLS? Then we could kiss the dentist goodbye. Until then, don't forget to brush your teeth after every meal and write to us about all your favorite DC Kids' comics, especially the POWERPUFF GIRLS. See ya later, alligator.

ALLEN KLINGELHOETS BARRON, WISCONSIN

It was terrific to see the reappearance of the Powerpuff Girls in CARTOON NETWORK STARRING. I was pleased to read that Blossom, Bubbles and Buttercup will soon have their own springtime comic book. I enjoyed reading "Black and Blue Period" in CARTOON NETWORK STARRING #5.

Ms. Keane seems very aware that the girls are actually the Powerpuff Girls. It seemed pretty obvious. I did not see any other Pokey Oaks Kindergarten students flinch when asked what they did the prior weekend.

I loved how the personalities of the threesome came off as they do in the cartoon. Good job, creative team!

That monster they defeated looked very scary. If I were Scooby-Doo, I would have eaten a whole box of Scooby Snacks and kicked its butt. Fortunately Townsville was again saved by the Powerpuff Girls.

The story was even better when Ms. Keane thought the Powerpuff Girls had gone to the Museum of Modern Art. I would have hated to see them get detention for saving the world from that mean monster.

MARAE SMITH BLTYHE, CALIFORNIA

The reason I am contacting your company is on behalf of my 3-year-old daughter who is in love with the Powerpuff Girls. They are her favorite characters. Unfortunately I haven't been able to find PPG merchandise. What she is continually asking for is PPG dolls. Could you please send a catalog and/or send information where I can find the stores?

Unfortunately, MaRae, we don't know the exact names of the stores for you to go to for Powerpuff Girls merchandise, but we do know some places that you can check. One is the web site www.powerpuffgirls.com. And the other is right here at our Cartoon Network comic burst somewhere on every lettercolumn for the latest Cartoon Network info.

TRENTON DOOLITTLE HILLSDALE, MICHIGAN

I'm a new comic-book reader. I am also fifteen years old and I'm in Hillsdale High School. I got a Scooby-Doo comic, the CARTOON NETWORK STARRING comics #1 and #2 and more.

I also watch some shows on Cartoon Network, but the best show I really watch every week is the POWERPUFF GIRLS. My favorites are Blossom and Buttercup. I have two questions: 1) When Scooby is very popular from his show, he has his own comic. Then, his comics were very popular. Can the Powerpuff Girls have their own comic series like Scooby-Doo does? And 2) Do you watch the Powerpuff Girls? Keep up the good work!

1) As you can see, we agreed with you and gave the Powerpuff Girls their own comic. 2) You better believe we watch the Powerpuff Girls on TV, multiple times. That's one of the many perks of our jobs.

next issue:

Mojo Jojo discovers the number of the Powerpuff Girls' phone, which he uses to send the girls on wild-goose chases. Will the Powerpuff Girls find out who's behind the prank call before Mojo robs Townsville blind? Be here next month to find out in "Dial 'M' for Mojo." Written by John Rozum; art by Ricardo Garcia Fuentes and Mike DeCarlo; cover by Phil Moy.

Other DC Kids' Titles:

Dexter's Laboratory #13: Dexter's a genius, but he can't tell a good joke — can science give him a funny bone? Plus, only Dee-Dee can stop the lab from blowing up in "Forget Me Not!" Written by Dave Roman and Brian Swenlin; art by Mike Stern, John Delaney and Jeff Albrecht; cover by Genndy Tartakovsky and Albrecht.

Looney Tunes #68: Daffy wants to be a Shakespearean superstar but blows it all to bits as "MacDuck"; Sylvester gets a gold medal for chasing Tweety; and Bugs tries to bug Elmer but makes history instead! Written by Terry Labián, Barry Lieberman and Frank Strom; art by David Alvarez, John Costanza, Leo Batic, Mike DeCarlo; cover by Alvarez and DeCarlo.

Cartoon Network Starring #13: Cow gets a really weird allergy attack in "Weak in the Sneeze" and hoofs her way onto Chicken's toboggan team in "Flaming Desire"; plus, Baboon becomes vampire food in "Night of the Baboon!" Written by Dan Slott, Jennifer Moore & Sean Carolan, and Paul Kupperberg; art by Gary Fields and Tim Harkins; cover by David Feiss.

Scooby-Doo #38: Even when the gang goes on vacation, they find a mystery! It's spooky summertime fun as Mystery Inc. finds jaguar-god ghosts in the South American jungle — and computer creepiness along the California coastline. Written by John Rozum and Bob Fingerma; art by Joe Staton, Dave Hunt and Bill Wray; cover by Joe Staton and Dave Hunt.

This month's cover is by Phil Moy.

Collector's Card #5 of 12. Collect them all!
